Made of Acacia in Bolivia—Growing Trees Used in Africa

The most original telegraph line in the world is a wire strung in the capital of Bolivia, La Paz, to the town of Oruro. In this part of Bolivia there are no growing trees, and wood is so scarce that it is used for the ordinary handrails for the natives. The wire is made of wood, but of dried wood or adobe.

For when the wire broke out between Chile and Bolivia and a telegraph line became urgent it was decided that poles chosen for the purpose telegraph poles to exist. These poles were built on stone found in the base, with a height of about fifteen feet.

They were placed at intervals of about 800 feet and thus held the wire at a height sufficient to clear the only animals of the country, the llama and the donkey. The total length of the line was 150 miles.

Among other curious telegraph lines in the growing pole line erected in Uganda by an English engineer, who could not find any dead wood which would withstand the white ants and bit upon the idea of transporting growing bark cloth trees to the side of the roads and using them as poles.

In the Dutch East Indies growing trees are turned to account also, but there a wire is stretched across the road between the trees on either side, and the insulator is suspended in the middle, and the line is thus over the road and clear from vegetation.—Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK'S BOWERY.

Why the Upper Part of It Was Named Fourth Avenue.

In the early times of the last century there lived in Brooklyn a Mr. and Mrs. Smith. Mr. Smith was a rising civil engineer, and most of his work was in New York. It was necessary that he be nearer his place of business than Brooklyn for in those days ferries were slow and infrequent no bridges spanned the river, and horse cars were the slowest means of transit. Being a man of moderate means, Mr. Smith went house hunting through the streets of New York, seeking a modest but respectable abode. Near the upper end of the Bowery he found a small house. Fitted with his success, he rushed home with the news to his wife. But when he mentioned the name of the street in which this house stood his wife's face fell.

"How could you think of it?" she asked. Smith was in despair.

Even as far back as 1840 the Bowery had acquired an unfavorable reputation. Mr. Smith tried to explain that the upper part of the Bowery was still untainted; that many very respectable people lived in that part of town; that it would be many long years before crime and sin would spread that far north.

It was all wasted energy. The fact that she would be living on the Bowery was sufficient for Mrs. Smith.

As a civil engineer it was Mr. Smith's custom to overcome obstacles. The following day he hired a conveyance, and he and Mrs. Smith went house hunting together. Mrs. Smith knew her Brooklyn thoroughly, but had only a slight acquaintance with New York. After driving through many streets without finding a suitable house the husband quietly turned into the Bowery at Union square and slowly walked the horse in the direction of the house he had found the previous day.

Suddenly Mrs. Smith exclaimed: "Why, there's a pretty place to let, dear!"

"Where?" hastily questioned her husband, purposely looking in the opposite direction. Had Mrs. Smith not been so intent upon the house in question she might have noticed the merry twinkle in her husband's eyes and suspected something.

"Right over there," she replied, pointing to the house with the "To Let" sign.

An examination of the premises convinced Mrs. Smith that she must have the place, and when she learned that her neighbors were old friends of hers she had her husband close the bargain at once.

All this time no mention was made of the street. How Smith managed to move into the house and keep Mrs. Smith in the dark as to the name of the street is a mystery. But there came a day, and there was a storm. The next day was something heretofore unknown in the Smith household. Once again Mr. Smith's habit of overcoming obstacles stood him in good stead. His wife would not live on the Bowery. Her home was ideal; her neighbors were good people, but they lived on the Bowery. So Smith and one of his neighbors went before the board of aldermen. The neighbor had influence. The street signs from Union square down to Fourth street were changed. Instead of "Bowery" the words "Fourth avenue" were substituted.

And Mrs. Smith was happy ever after.—New York World

A Curious Spanish Custom.

Ellen Maury Flayden in the Century in an account of her own and her husband's lavish entertainment in a Spanish household says:

"No custom of the house was so unaccountable as that of having people come to see you eat. Enjoying a square meal while our guests inhaled cigarette smoke seemed so inhospitable that I sometimes playfully insisted upon their having something with us. It was always laughably declined, except once when a particularly lively youth took a piece of ham and ate it with all sorts of self-conscious little antics, as if he were acting a pantomime."

Shortening of the Day.

It has long been known theoretically that the tides act as a brake on the rotating earth and tend to lengthen the day. The effect, however, is so slight that it cannot be measured in any length of time at man's disposal. It may be estimated with the aid of certain assumptions, and, using the data available, W. D. MacMillan made the necessary computation by the formulas used by engineers. He finds for the increase of the length of the day one second in 400,000 years.

Waiting.

"Oh, I'm still over there where you wait on the waiter."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

SERVICE IN THE CABINET.

The Custom of Our Presidents in the Republic's Early Days.

If President John Adams had been a man of different temperament the custom might have been established in the early years of the government of the United States of retaining the cabinet of one administration for service with its successor where that successor succeeded to the political ideas of its predecessor. President Adams sought at first to retain through his administration the members of the cabinet of President Washington. In deed, at that early period the status of a cabinet officer was not exactly that of the present time, and in the course of President Adams' paws with the members of his official household he resorted to the strange step of moving his secretary of state, Timothy Pickens, and James McHenry, his secretary of war.

President Jefferson of course took a new cabinet. President Madison continued in his administration a number of the cabinet officers of President Jefferson, and President Monroe held some of his predecessor's John Quincy Adams also continued to meet about his council board some of the advisers of James Monroe, but Andrew Jackson began his administration with an entirely new set of official counselors. He maintained also another set of advisers, unofficial, who became known as the "kitchen cabinet."

For some time the gentlemen who had acted respectively as secretary of the treasury, secretary of war, secretary of the navy, postmaster general and attorney general in the cabinet of President Jackson retained their seats under President Van Buren, but changed only awaited the passage of time.

President William Henry Harrison's cabinet was brand new, and John Tyler sought to keep it together after Harrison's death, but in less than six months all had resigned except Daniel Webster, the secretary of state. Presidents Polk, Taylor, Fillmore, Pierce, Buchanan and Lincoln each formed a new cabinet.

President Johnson's difficulties with certain members of the cabinet that existed at the death of President Lincoln are well known. Since that period, when for the second time in American history the question of a cabinet officer's right to retain a seat which the president wishes to have created came up for angry controversy, cabinet seats by mutual but tactful understanding with the administrations—Boston Globe

The London Urrlin With the Bun Down His Back.

It has been a matter so customary to look upon crime as tragedy and criminal as tragedians that to aver that comedy is more frequently to be found in crime than tragedy seems at first view paradoxical. Yet such is the case. A little London urchin ran into a baker's shop and, placing a halfpenny on the counter, asked nervously and timidly, "Mister, 'ave you a 'alf penny buster (bun)?"

"Yes, my little man. Here is one quite hot."

"Thanks, mister. Would you mind 'savin' it down my back?"

"Down your back, my little man. Why down your back?"

"Cos, sir, I'm only a little on, and if those chaps outside know I've a buster they'll take it, and I am so 'unerry, I am."

"Dear me, how wrong of them! Come round here, my little chap. There, it is down your back."

The boy ran off. In an instant another entered—a bigger boy.

"I say, mister, 'as a little boy just been in 'ere?"

"Yes."

"And did 'e buy a 'alfpenny buster?"

"Yes."

"And did 'e ask you to shove it down 'is back, as us big fellows would take it?"

"Yes."

"Tah! Where's your watch and chain? 'E's got 'em. 'E's just round the corner."

Out rushed the baker. In a trice the big boy collared the till and bolted.

The shopman never saw the criminal side of it all.—London Strand Magazine.

A Drink of Water.

A glass of cold water slowly sipped will produce a greater acceleration of the pulse for a time than will a glass of wine or spirits taken at a draft. In this connection it may not be out of place to mention that sipping cold water will often allay the craving for alcohol in those who have been in the habit of taking too much of it and may be endeavoring to reform. The effect being probably due to the stimulant action of the sipping.

A ROYAL FUNERAL.

Strange Ceremonies That Mark the Burial of a Spanish King.

Strange and almost weird is the ceremonial which accompanies the burial of a Spanish king. The pantheon, or royal tomb, is at the base of the "south," situated 330 feet above the level of the sea and 500 feet above the capital. Only kings, queens and mothers of kings are buried there, the coffins of the kings lying on one side, those of the queens on the other. After lying in state for several days in the throne room in Madrid an enormous procession is formed, accompanying the body to the funeral. A halt is made on the way, and the corpse rests there for one night.

In the morning the lord high chamberlain stands at the side of the coffin and says in loud tones, "Is your majesty pleased to proceed on your journey?" After a short silence the procession moves on and winds up to the grand portal of the palace. These doors are never opened except to admit a royal personage, dead or alive. When the casket containing the remains is at last placed in the vault the chamberlain unlocks it and, kneeling down, calls with a loud voice: "Senor! Senor! Senor!"

After a solemn pause he cries again: "His majesty does not reply! Then it is true, the king is dead!"

He then locks the coffin, gives the key to the prior and, taking his staff of office, breaks it in pieces and flings them at the casket. The booming of the guns and the tolling of bells announce to the nation that the king has gone to his final resting place.

How They Look.

You ever notice the expression these young men wear on their face just before posing for a picture to go in the advertisement? One may be a serious--no, all of them are serious looking--some with a miserable frown, as if a tack was hurting their foot, or a frown that would indicate a deadly disease was gnawing at their vitals. One buck may be sporting a bull dog and short stem pipe; another standing up shooting off a pistol as a signal for the hundred-yard-dashers. Another may be leaning way over the rail cheering a football game, but of the whole lot, none of them look or act any more like young men, than the pictures in the delineators look and act like handsome young women.

We are all fools about our fashion and take it with great devotion.

Open at Night.

The postoffice will be kept open at nights as usual after this. When that notice was posted in the lobby, Secretary Layfield took the matter up with the postmaster, also the lessors of the building, and Thursday night he appeared before the city council in behalf of lights.

Since the government doesn't care about having such offices as ours kept open after nine o'clock, and refuses to bear any additional expense, and since it is not the duty of the lessors to furnish lights after the specified hour, and since council has adopted a rigid policy about giving free lights to any person or institution, the commercial club has agreed to pay for the light in a lobby after nine o'clock at nights. This act on the part of the club will be a great convenience to its members and the public generally.

Gus Wilson, escaped September 8,
1927; Jim Burks, escaped October
1, 1927; Louis Walker, escaped
October 23, 1927.

Under the new contract this provision is changed to read: "Provided
such escape is the result of negligence, etc., consequently no further action can be collected for, as the lessee would hardly admit negligence if possible, contract should be amended to cover a forfeiture of $100 for escapes."

Geo. Leslie, County Judge.
From the statement attached you
will note there is due the county $90
on fines and $28 on costs, which
amount has been covered into the treasury on this date. There are one few executions which should
be issued against delinquents for the
delinquency of amounts due.
In this court, case 68, there is an amount due by Cliff Reeves, which
has been probably collected, but it
is not known who made this collection.

Probate Judge
These books are well and correctly kept.
W. A. Brown, Clerk Circuit Court
I found Mr. Brown's records in excellent condition and well and
neatly kept and with an exception,
which appears to be an oversight in attending to due this office. You will note from a statement attached that V. C. Crawford, ex-circuit clerk in the county an amount of $233.11
which is a list of unsettled fines in
which it appears that most of them
can be easily collected or responsibility for collection placed.

T. W. Butler, Sheriff
Mr. Butler made a settlement of his account, as shown in separate
statement by remittance to treasurer
of $1430.75, which clears his docket to date. The following amounts are due by his predecessors:
V. C. Crawford, $96
C. E. Walker, $179.25.

W. H. Helms, County Treasurer
The disbursements in this account
were checked by the vouchers and
found to be correct, but it was impossible to check all the receipts
because many items were lumped and
the items so merged lost their identity and became for that reason impossible to locate separately. In order to properly keep a record of
entries and disbursements, the
treasurer needs a specially prepared
check book with sufficient columns to show the sources of income and for
that account disbursed. If this
were the case, separate entry should
be made for each receipt and such
receipt number as well as the name
of the remitter should constitute the entry. Where one remittance is made monthly covering an item for which
an account is kept as for instance
license, one receipt will suffice, as
at present handled.
The treasurer's account shows an
amount of $5842.18 in the treasury.
Respectfully submitted,

It will be noted that 24. republican votes were polled in the county and 23 Populist. It will be seen that the Bryan electors
received about 4 times as many votes as Taft.

The Constitutional amendments all carried by good ma-

H. D. Clayton and the county
nominees received about 100
more votes than were polled for president in both parties.

The entire ticket carried about the same vote and had no op-

The Gorilla

The gorilla is a thing that is not of nervous temperament should be kept. Once seen it never can be forgotten. Just to think of it months after ward brings up a choking sensation while makes one long to tear away the collar and breathe the free air as deeply as he can. It rests upon a raised platform an ordinary straight backed chair, with thin iron clasp on the elbows and legs of the chair. The gorilla for the arms and ankles of the condemned criminal. At the top of the back of the chair is a kind of iron, one end of which swings out as to admit of a neck being inserted. This band snaps around in place and all is ready. A twist of a crank in back and as the band crushes the neck back a pin pierces the medulla oblongata.—New York Sun

To Cure Hay Fever

Take one pound of rawgweed leaves (with stems, flower and seeds) indiscriminately or without them, boil in two quarts of water down to one quart and strain. Divide this one quart into three parts—viz one pint and two half pints. On the first day take one-twelfth of the one pint every hour—twelve doses. The second day take one-twelfth of one half pint every hour, and on the third day take the same quantity viz one-twelfth of one half pint.—Detroit Free Press

Fish and Salt

And the mystery still lingers why is it necessary to salt a fish caught in the salt ocean? A sea bass caught off Sealright requires just as much salt in the seasoning as a black fish caught in the mildest waters of Lake Erie.—New York Press

Grass and animals, the cold it holds the palm for rapid increase. A rabbit breeds seven times a year producing about eight young at a time.

Trains

Trains like animals eat sleep grow and die. When the weather is warm a train goes to sleep at sundown and in the morning wakes again. A cloudy day makes the train drowsy. Pains keep it to sleep. So the only days of prosperity and free activity are the clear days.

To sleep the leaves of many trees fold together and droop. The closing of the leaves checks the cooling process of evaporation and maintains bodily heat. All young and tender foliage curls thus to curl up to sleep when the weather is bad or shut in the sky. Older and stiffer leaves go to sleep sitting up. Just like grandfather in his arm chair.

The breathing of the tree is as necessary as is the breathing of animals. All life consists of a continuous build up and tearing down of cells. The material for building new cells is made of food taken in and elaborated inside the cell by intricate chemical processes. The oxygen in the air is one of the chemical ingredients both in destroying and building the cells of animals and trees. The leaves are the lungs which inhale carbon dioxide and exhale pure oxygen.—New York Herald

The Dorcas society derived its name from Dorcas (Ara) is a woman who was full of good deeds and made coats and garments for the poor.

His Mistake

"Bishop Potter was a wonderfully effective preacher," said a Brooklyn clergyman. "His method was reserved and quiet. He always had him if you will in hand. I once delivered a sermon before him. I was young and enthusiastic at the time, a disciple of the methods of Holmwood. I let myself go in that sermon. My voice shook the pulpit. At luncheon afterward I am ashamed to say that I looked for compliments. I leaned over the bishop and asked him in a low voice to give me some advice on preaching."

"Dear knows what I expected him to reply, probably that I was beyond any advice from him. At any rate what he did reply was this:

"My dear young friend, never mix religion with the pulpit preparation for inspiration."

Not Exactly Mr. Lincoln

A gentleman who had not read very much of Lincoln's life had been in England some little time and from of giving his views for a full day at the school. He found how easy that he would be unable to quote the man himself but promised to try to do so for them and return the following day.

Accordingly on the morning when they were to visit the library he went to the ticket office and said to the official:

"Please give me one ticket to bring you for myself to a man tomorrow. Then to the president of every one, headed. And you will for my wife—never to return."—London Tit Bits

He Armed High

President Lincoln once had a singular interview with a particularly strange man. This was a man who had been noticed hanging about the White House in Washington. Asked his business he said he wanted to see Mr. Lincoln and was not going away until he had seen him. Ultimately the president permitted the visitor an interview.

Said Mr. Lincoln, he began, "I want a secretary of war for if you do I'm your man."

The president informed him that at that moment he was not in need of such an article.

With that the stranger withdrew as he was leaving the room he turned and said, "Say Mr. Lincoln have you such a thing as a pair of old trousers?"

After a hearty laugh Lincoln told his visitor he almost deserved the secretaryship "because," he added, "you are his high."

His Worship:—No, no, he would not have used the third person.

His Worship: Then he must have said "I stole the pig."

Was Springs

The watch carried by the average man is composed of ninety-eight pieces and its intricate mechanism more than 2,000 distinct and separate motions.

Halfspring, which will be in twenty-four hours to the full. One side of which will be less than half a pound.

The full now gives five vibrations every second, 30 every minute, 1,800 every hour, 43,200 every day and 157,680,000 every year.

The value of springs when finished and put in watches is enormous in proportion to the material from which they are made. A ton of steel made up into halfsprings when in watches is worth more than twelve and one-half times the value of the same weight in pure gold.

How He Managed It

The bishop of Richmond told a good story about his father. "He was a former," said Dr. Pultine, "and a nice old gentleman too. One year he took it into his head to grow flax, so he sowed the seed and having a good crop sent it away to be made into a tablecloth. Some time later when seated at dinner he remarked to a lady near him, 'Do you know, I grew this tablecloth myself.' 'Did you really?' she answered with the greatest surprise. 'However did you manage it?' 'Well,' most seriously, 'if you'll promise not to tell any one I'll tell you. I—planted a napkin.'—London Mail

Easy to Imitate

These who like to think that things were better in the old days than they are now will find it hard to disagree with the following anecdote from Judge. A newly married couple had had a little disagreement about the mullins. The husband complained that those his mother used to make were far superior. This moved the girl to action, and the next day she set before him a plate of hot rolls which she boldly bade him taste.

"Now you have hit it!" he exclaimed enthusiastically. "These are exactly like what mother used to make. How did you do it?"

"I will give you the recipe," replied the bride coldly. "I used oleomargarine for butter, cold storage eggs put alum in the flour and added milk and water to the milk. Your mother lived before the pure food laws."

A Candid Critic.
"A criticism that has helped me a great deal in my work came from a man to whom I took a picture to be traced," said a young woman who spends much of her time rapping in the Metropolitan Museum of Art. "As the picture progressed my friends told me it was fine. Some of the other copyists said it had value, character, good coloring and all those things, and even one of the guards in the gallery got real friendly one day and remarked that it was the best copy of that picture he had seen. I began to think that maybe after all, my several years of study were beginning to bear fruit. At the framer's I picked out a nice frame, and the framer began to figure on the cost. 'I'll tell you, miss,' he said, 'that frame will come to $3.95. If I were you I'd get something cheaper for that picture.'—New York Sun

"Setting the River on Fire."
In old English times, when each family was obliged to eat its own flour, it sometimes happened that an energetic man would turn his mill so rapidly as to catch fire. The style of mills used in those days was called a "watermill" and it became a commonplace saying that a lady man would never set the house on fire. Now, it happens that the name of the river Thames is pronounced like the name of this old flour sieve, and after many years, when the old fashioned term was forgotten, it was thought that setting the house on fire meant setting the river on fire, and that is why to day we say that a stupid person will never set the river on fire.

Superstition.
"When I first started out hunting apartments I went through a long, polite discussion," said the woman with a haunted look and weary feet. "Now I go in and say to the elevator man or janitor: 'Apartment? Room? Room? Keep 'em.' I get along just as well, and it saves lots of time. Try it."—New York Times.

Not His Fault.

The Gag Was Omitted.
"Nearly all of us players can gag," said a well known actor. "Usually, though, the gagging is of a selfish nature. I'll explain to you what I mean. 'Once, at the beginning of my career, I played the part of a footman. I wore in this part a very broad white collar, a kind of Eton collar. Well, the leading man told me one night that with my help he would introduce a gag.'"

"All right," said I. "What is the gag to be?"
"You know how," said the leading man, "in the third act, I write a letter while you stand beside me and wait to carry it to your mistress? Well, after the letter is finished, I'll reach over to you in an absent way and wipe my pen on your white collar. Of course it will make a large black stain, but you'll see—it will bring down the house."

"I laughed heartily. 'Capital,' I said. 'And I'll finish the thing off with a little gag of my own. As soon as you have wiped your pen on my nice collar I'll wheel round and knock you down. Of course it will hurt you a little, but you'll see—it will be the hit of the show.'"

"Hurry up, Tommy!" called mother from downstairs. "We're late now. Have you got your shoes on?"
"Yes, mamma—all but one."

Hot Stuff.
On opening a new golf course at Tankerton, Whitstable, Mr. Akers-Douglas related a good story. A golfer at Hale had an irritating experience with a local caddy. He followed so closely and was so anxious to please by intelligent anticipation that the player had several narrow escapes of severely disfiguring him. After a tedious and unprofitable round he paid him off and gave him his lunch ticket and threepence for cleaning his clubs and addressed him "You know you are not quite perfect as a caddy. There is room for improvement. But as an agent for an accident insurance company you are pretty hot stuff. What is your name?" The caddy, a stolid looking and hitherto silent youth, moved, like Balzac's man by the exigencies of the situation opened his mouth and replied, "Mustard"—London Express

STAGE SCENERY.

Modern Settings Tax the Ingenuity of the Builders

The big scenic artists do little actual painting beyond making the model unless they have a minor paint effect. That they do themselves standing on the paint bridge, many feet from the floor while the canvas is raised or lowered. The paintwork effects are hard to handle. One difficulty is to avoid fluttering when a draft sweeps across the stage. Mountains that tremble lazily are not conducive to illusion.

With the elaborate productions of late years the importance of the builder of scenery has increased, says Everybody's Magazine. Formerly when the scenery consisted merely of canvas stretched over a wooden frame it was simple enough. But the struggle for realism and sensational effects has developed difficult problems for the builder of stage scenery to solve. Every piece of scenery must be made so that it can be folded into strips five feet nine inches wide because the doors of the baggage cars in which it is transported are only six feet in breadth. Also every piece must be light and so constructed that one scene can be removed and another put in place within ten minutes. It may take thirty hours of continuous work to get the scenery "set up" to use a technical expression after it is brought into the theater. After that the work of changing a scene is comparatively easy.

Not Engaged in Bartering.
A Milwaukee book agent has his troubles occasionally. Not long ago he entered the office of a young lawyer who was buying his first library. After the different books necessary for a beginning in this direction had been discussed the agent said, "I will charge you $10 for this in boards or the same set will be $15 in sheep."
The lawyer looked at him as if he thought the agent had gone crazy.
"If you will make me a price in straight dollars," the young man said. "I'll tell you whether I want it or not. You don't suppose I am going to pay my bills with sheep and lumber, do you, even if my father is a lawyer in northern Wisconsin?"—Milwaukee Free Press

A DOGS' CLUB.

London's Luxurious Resort For Aristocratic Canine Pets

London is the only city in the world boasting a dogs' club. The club is in a pleasant suit of rooms near the Trocadero and close to Regent street. Hand some rugs cover the floors, the windows are veiled in lace and silk and luxurious sofas are ranged against the walls while a profusion of soft pillows are scattered about for the comfort of aristocratic dogs who prefer the floor for a nap. Dairy satin lined wicker baskets are provided for the smaller pets. The membership fee is half a sovereign, but this does not include meals, baths or tips to the attendants.

I allow going shopping or to the theater leave their pugs and poodles at the club and give the attendant in charge at the time a few shillings for looking after it, but if the dog is fed half a crown is charged. This pays for a nut-ton chop and milk. A whole crowd provides the little animal with unseasoned chicken. For a half sovereign Fido is bathed, brushed and perfumed, and if he is a French poodle his hair is carefully curled. A veterinary is attached to the club to see that only dogs in perfect health are admitted, all sick members being quarantined in a separate room. Blankets, boots, collars, harness, soap and brushes and all the necessities of a fashionable dog's toilet as well as dog medicines are sold at the club.—New York Press

Oxygen Tippling.
"Oxygen tippling is the latest form of the drug habit," said a doctor. "Two physicians have died of it this year and it is stated that there are quite a hundred oxygen tipplers among the laity of our big cities."

"Oxygen, you know, is a wonderful stimulant. Its inhalation keeps death at bay for days and days. But taken regularly it soon wrecks the health. Its effect is said to be delightful. Like champagne, it creates gaiety. Along with this gaiety goes a feeling of tremendous power and lightness. Drunk on oxygen, the most sluggish and melancholy persons have a joyous and heartening idea that they can do anything in the world."—New York Press

How They Look.

You ever notice the expression these young men wear on their face just before posing for a picture to go in the advertisement? One may be a serious-no, all of them are serious looking--some with a miserable frown, as if a tack was hurting their foot, or a frown that would indicate a deadly disease
was gnawing at their vitals.
One buck may be sporting a bull

Open at Night.

The postoffice will be kept open
at nights as usual after this.
When that notice was posted in the lobby, Secretary Layfield took the matter up with the postmaster, also the lessors of the building, and Thursday night he appeared before the city council in behalf of lights.
Since the government doesn't care about having such offices as ours kept open after nine o'clock,
and refuses to bear any additional expense, and since it is not the duty of the lessors to furnish lights after the specified hour, and since council has adopted a rigid policy about giving free lights to any person or institution, the commercial club has agreed to pay for the lighting in a lobby after nine o'clock at nights. This action on the part of the club will be a great convenience to its members and the public generally.

Dothan, Ala., Oct. 28, 1930.
The Hon. Court of County Commissioners Dothan, Houston County, Alabama.
Gentlemen: Permit me to join a petition I have made on examination of the books and accounts of the following officials from the 1929 to date:
George Leslie, hard labor agent
George Leslie, county judge and judge of probate
W. A. Brown, and predecessor,
circuit court
T. W. Butler and predecessor,
circuit court
W. H. Helms and predecessor,
circuit court
No examination was made of the accounts of the tax assessor or tax collector for the reason that the books were not in the city and the date of their return unknown. Subject to you which an engagement
for this purpose can be made.

Hard Labor Agent
You will note from the statement
out there is due by Judge Leslie on his account, an amount of $29.23,
which has been committed to the receiver on this date. The former lessee, Anderson Boyd, lumber company,
is still due for the time of two months and they have been notified
this fact and settlement requested.

In the contract with the lessee
of the field steel and iron company,
made to cover the period November 1, 1926 to December 31, 1927, there is a provision that they shall pay to the county $100 for each contract making escape. Whether such escape is the result of negligence or not.

I have to report the following escapes for which no settlement has
been made:
Gus Wilson, escaped September 8,
1927; Jim Burks, escaped October
1, 1927; Louis Walker, escaped
October 23, 1927.
Under the new contract this pro-
vision is changed to read: "Provided
such escape is the result of negligence, etc., consequently no further payment can be collected for, as the
lessee would hardly admit negligence if possible, contract should be amended to cover a forfeiture of $100 for escapes."

Geo. Leslie, County Judge.
From the statement attached you
will note there is due the county $90
on fines and $28 on costs, which
amount has been covered into the
treasury on this date. There are
one few executions which should
be issued against delinquents for the
delinquency of amounts due.
In this court, case 68, there is an
amount due by Cliff Reeves, which
has been probably collected, but it
is not known who made this collection.

Probate Judge
These books are well and correctly kept.
W. A. Brown, Clerk Circuit Court
I found Mr. Brown's records in excellent condition and well and
neatly kept and with an exception,
which appears to be an oversight in
attending to due this office. You will
note from a statement attached that
A. C. Crawford, ex-circuit clerk in the county an amount of $233.11
which is a list of unsettled fines in
which it appears that most of them
can be easily collected or responsibility for collection placed.

T. W. Butler, Sheriff
Mr. Butler made a settlement of
his account, as shown in separate
statement by remittance to treasurer
of $1430.75, which clears his docket to date. The following amounts are
due by his predecessors:
A. C. Crawford, $96
C. E. Walker, $179.25.

W. H. Helms, County Treasurer
The disbursements in this account
were checked by the vouchers and
found to be correct, but it was im-
possible to check all the receipts
because many items were lumped and
the items so merged lost their identity and became for that reason impossible to locate separately. In order to properly keep a record of
entries and disbursements, the
treasurer needs a specially prepared
check book with sufficient columns to
show the sources of income and for
that account disbursed. If this
were the case, separate entry should
be made for each receipt and such
receipt number as well as the name
of the remitter should constitute the
entry. Where one remittance is made
monthly covering an item for which
an account is kept as for instance
license, one receipt will suffice, as
at present handled.

The treasurer's account shows an
amount of $5842.18 in the treasury.
Respectfully submitted,
W. W. HARALSON,
Public Accountant,
State of Alabama, Houston County.
Before me, Leslie Long, a notary public in and for said county and state, personally appeared W. W.
Haralson, who being duly sworn, declared and says that he has examined the books and accounts of all the county officials named in the above statement and that the accounts to be as represented.
W. W. HARALSON,
Sworn to and subscribed before me this 28th day of October, 1930
LESLIE LONG,
Notary Public.

be seen that the Bryan electors

The Constitutional amend-

H. D. Clayton and the county

more votes than were polled for

YOU LIKE IT
YOU are not a shoemaker, so there's no need of going into an analysis of the construction of the "Queen Quality" Shoe. But the fact remains that it satisfies over two million wearers. They know they like it; that it gives style to the foot; that it gives comfort the first day worn. And that is enough. It holds its shape longer than other ready made shoes because it fits. Yet the enormous business done on "Queen Quality" Shoes keeps the prices moderate.

We have many lots not broken, of the highest class. We have what you want in clothing.

The Gorilla

The gorilla is a thing that a man of nervous temperament should be afraid of. Once seen it never can be forgotten. Just to think of it months after ward brings up a choking sensation while makes one long to tear away his collar and breathe the free air as deeply as he can. It rests upon a raised platform an ordinary straight backed chair, with thin iron clasp on the elbows and legs of the chair. The gorilla for the arms and ankles of the condemned criminal. At the top of the back of the chair is a kind of iron, one end of which swings out as to admit of a neck being inserted. This band snaps around in place and all is ready. A twist of a crank in back and as the band crushes the neck back a pin pierces the medulla oblongata.—New York Sun

To Cure Hay Fever

Take one pound of ragweed leaves (with stems, flower and seeds) indiscriminately or without them, boil in two quarts of water down to one quart and strain. Divide this one quart into three parts—viz one pint and two half pints. On the first day take one-twelfth of the one pint every hour—twelve doses. The second day take one-twelfth of one half pint every hour, and on the third day take the same quantity viz one-twelfth of one half pint.—Detroit Free Press

And the mystery still lingers why is it necessary to salt a fish caught in the salt ocean? A sea bass caught off Sealright requires just as much salt in the seasoning as a black fish caught in the saltiest waters of Lake Erie.—New York Press

Grass and animals the rabbit holds the palm for rapid increase. A rabbit breeds seven times a year producing about eight young at a time.

Traces

Traces like animals eat sleep grow and die. When the weather is warm a man goes to sleep at sundown and in the morning wakes again. A cloudy day makes the traces dry. Pain puts it to sleep. So the only days of prosperity and true activity are the clear days.

To sleep the leaves of many trees fold together and droop. The closing of the leaves checks the cooling process of evaporation and maintains bodily heat. All young and tender foliage only thus is enabled to sleep when the weather is bad or night is in the air. Older and stiffer leaves go to sleep sitting up. Just like grandfather in his arm chair.

The breathing of the tree is as necessary as is the breathing of animals. All life consists of a continuous build up and tearing down of cells. The material for building new cells is made of food taken in and elaborated inside—by intricate chemical processes. The oxygen in the air is one of the chemical ingredients both in destroying and building the cells of animals and trees. The leaves are the lungs which inhale carbon dioxide and exhale pure oxygen.—New York Herald

His Mistake

"Bishop Potter was a wonderfully effective preacher," said a Brooklyn clergyman. "His method was reserved and quiet. He always had him if you will in hand. I once delivered a sermon before him. I was young and enthusiastic at the time, a disciple of the methods of Holmwood. I let myself go in that sermon. My voice shook the pulpit. At luncheon afterward I am ashamed to say that I looked for compliments. I leaned over the bishop and asked him in a low voice to give me some advice on preaching."

"Dear knows what I expected him to reply, probably that I was beyond any advice from him. At any rate what he did reply was this:

"My dear young friend, never mix religion with the pulpit perspiration for inspiration."

Not Exactly Mr. Lincoln

A gentleman who had not read very much of Lincoln's life had been in England some little time and had been of giving his views on Lincoln's life to a group of his friends. He found how correct that he would be unable to give the man himself but promised to return as far there and return the following day.

Accordingly on the morning when they were to start the journey he went to the ticket office and said to the official:

"Please give me one ticket to Brighton for myself to return tomorrow. Then to the amount of every one, he added. And you add for my wife—seven to return.—London Tit Bits

He Armed High

President Lincoln once had a singular interview with a person very strange. This was a man who had been noticed hanging about the White House in Washington. Asked his business he said he wanted to see Mr. Lincoln and was not going away until he had seen him. Ultimately the president granted the visitor an interview.

Said Mr. Lincoln, he began, I want a secretary of war. For if you do I'm your man."

The president informed him that at that moment he was not in need of such an article.

With that the stranger withdrew as he was leaving the room he turned and said, "Say Mr. Lincoln have you such a thing as a pair of old trousers?"

After a hearty laugh Lincoln told his visitor he almost deserved the secretaryship "because," he added, "you are high."

Exasperating

His Worship: What we want you to tell us are the exact words that were used by the prisoner when he spoke to you.

Witness: He said you were hip that he stole the pill.

His Worship:—No, no, he would not have used the third person.

Witness:—But you worship there was no third person.

His Worship: Then he must have said "I stole the pill."

Witness:—By George, no, maybe you did your worship but he did not split on you.—London Mel

Via Springs

The watch carried by the average man is composed of ninety-eight pieces and its intricate mechanism more than 2,000 distinct and separate motions.

Halfspring, wire will be in twenty-four grains to the inch. One side of wire will be less than half a pound.

The ball now gives five vibrations every second, 30 every minute, 1,800 every hour, 43,200 every day and 157,680,000 every year.

The value of spring when finished and put in watches is enormous in proportion to the material from which they are made. A ton of steel made into halfsprings when in watches is worth more than twelve and one-half times the value of the same weight in pure gold.

How He Managed It

The bishop of Richmond told a good story about his father. "He was a farmer," said Dr. Paine, "and a nice old gentleman too. One year he took it into his head to grow flax, so he sowed the seed and having a good crop sent it away to be made into a tablecloth. Some time later when seated at dinner he remarked to a lady near him, 'Do you know, I grew this tablecloth myself.' 'Did you really?' she answered with the greatest surprise. 'However did you manage it?' 'Well,' most seriously, 'if you'll promise not to tell any one I'll tell you. I—planted a napkin.'—London Mail

Easy to Imitate

These who like to think that things were better in the old days than they are now will find it hard to disagree with the following anecdote from Judge. A newly married couple had had a little disagreement about the mullins. The husband complained that those his mother used to make were far superior. This moved the girl to action and the next day she set before him a plate of hot rolls which she boldly bade him taste.

"I will give you the recipe," replied the bride coldly. "I used oleomargarine for butter, cold storage eggs put alum in the flour and added milk and water to the milk. Your mother lived before the pure food laws."
